This brick and shingle bungalow fits the description of a Craftsman Bungalow as if it were the example for it. It has a sleeping porch, earth-tone colors, original windows, a jerkin roof on all gables, a fireplace in the living room and appropriate landscaping for the style. There is no older picture available, but no doubt there has been little change in the outer appearance of this home.

The home was built for William and Grace Nohl. William worked for the gas and electric company as a groundsman and Grace worked at the watch company as plate worker.
